Emerging Trends in the Link Between Oral and Systemic Health

Does having periodontal disease increase the risk of cardiovascular disease, pre-term birth, cancer, or even Alzheimer’s disease? Multiple studies have found that periodontal disease is associated with cardiovascular disease. Recent findings in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute found that severe periodontitis was associated with a 24% increased risk for cancer. This course will review current evidence on the link between oral and systemic health and provide talking points for communicating this information to our patients.

From e-Cigarettes to Hookahs: Current Trends in Tobacco & Smoking

Does it seem as though even less people report cigarette smoking that the use of other tobacco products is increasing? Today, more high school students use e-cigarettes than smoke regular cigarettes. Many partake in multiple forms of tobacco including hookahs and smokeless. Flavored products add to the appeal. This course will examine the changing trends in tobacco use and how they impact oral and systemic health.
